Casanova, M. Ehnberg, I. Meier)	Session one will start with a short experiential introduction followed by theory on the Tree Drawing. During the 2nd and 3rd sessions, 2 analysts will present their views on a tree drawing done by a client. Each session a different tree drawing is presented. I. von Usler will explain the theory, the presentations are respectively by K. Casanova, K. Schaeppi, M.Ehnberg and I. Meier. L. Marguerat is facilitator.
2020	Spring	10, 24, 27 May	Psychological Interpretation of Pictures	04/60	Experiential Seminar	6 X 45min	Practice Interpreting Pictures and Picture Series while paying Attention to Specific Aspects.	How may picture interpretation be drawn into the analytic hour? How may transference be experienced when working with pictures? We explore how somatic manifestations of the unconscious may appear in images. We gain skills seeing individuation in picture series. One session is devoted to group work interpreting a picture series.
2020	Spring	8, 9 April	Psychological Interpretation of Fairy Tales	03/81	Open Lecture	4 X 45min	The Little Donkey: About Wearing and Removing a Skin	An exploration of the Grimm's tale 'The Little Donkey' (also called 'The Donkey') and the complexes a person is faced with on his/her individuation journey. We will contemplate the symbolic meaning and psychological implications of wearing and removing (a) skin. Please read Grimm's fairy tale 144 in advance: https://www.pitt.edu/~dash/grimm144.html
2020	Spring	22-May	Fundamentals of Analytical Psychology	01/66	Open Lecture	2 X 45min	Searching for Soul	In the Red Book Jung writes, "I had to become aware that I had lost my soul." What is soul? What may it feel like when connection is lost? How may soul searching and reconnection take place? Loss and recovery of soul will be explored and illuminated through Jung's personal experience. There is no 'right way', only a personal way.
2020	Fall	10-Sep	Fundamentals of Analytical Psychology	03/09	Lecture & Exp. Seminar	2 X 45min	Why do Jungian's study Myths and Fairy Tales? What is the Nature of the Myth you are living?	This lecture explores why Jungian's interpret myths and fairy tales and creates a relationship to personal myth. Is personal myth the consequence of your ongoing individuation process? We will take a glimpse at the greater pictures and patterns in universal and individual stories.
2020	Fall	13- Sep.	Individuation	11/14	Open Seminar, Workshop	4X45min	Explore your Personal Myth	Drawing, writing, sharing and reflecting you will map the patterns and elements of your personal myths. The outcome may become the springboard for deeper self-exploration
2020	Fall	3-Oct	Fundamentals of Analytical Psychology	01 33	Open Seminar	4 X 45min	Basel Walking Tour: Home of Alchemy and of C.G. Jung	This is a guided walking tour of Basel that creates a parallel between C.G. Jung's interest in alchemy and Basel as a center of alchemy in the 15th and 16th century. Besides visiting two buildings where Jung studied as well as a brief tour around the Basel Cathedral, we will venture down to Kleinhüningen to see the parish where Jung grew up and the church where his father worked. The tour ends at Totengässlein at the Pharmaceutical Museum that houses a historical collection of healing methods and two alchemical laboratories. Costs for train and museum tickets and lunch are responsibility of the participants. Further information will be provided upon request and/or registration.
2019	Spring	3-May	Psychological Interpretation of Pictures	04/55	Open Lecture	4 X 45 min	Introduction to Jungian Picture Interpretation: An Overview of Thodor Abt's, Ingrid Riedel's and further Jungian approaches to Picture Interpretation	Train the eye to see symbolic expression of psychic processes in images and learn to express this in words. Requested readings: Abt, Riedel, Briendl.
2019	Fall	3-Oct	Fundamentals of Analytical Psychology	01/33	Open Seminar	4 X 45min	C. G. Jung Basel Walking Tour: Focus Jung's Dreams & Religion	This is a guided walking tour of Basel to visit such sites as the Basel Cathedral, two building where Jung studied, and the parish in Klein Hüningen where Jung grew up. The tour highlights Jung's dreams and provides anecdotes from his life as well as provides some basic information about Basel. The tour ends at Totengässlein at the Pharmaceutical Museum that houses a historical collection of healing methods and two alchemical laboratories. Costs for tickets are responsibility of the participants. Further information will be provided upon request and/or registration.
2019	Fall	13-Nov	Psychological Interpretation of Fairy Tales	03/65	Lecture	2 X 45min	The Goose Girl at the Well: The Heroine's task of Taming the Masculine and Reclaiming the Feminine on the Journey to Wholeness aided by an Old Woman	The Grimm's fairy tale 'The Goose Girl at the Well' holds the pattern of a woman's individuation task of integrating the feminine and masculine aspects on the journey to wholeness. The fairy tale will be brought into connection with the task that many contemporary women face in analytical practice. This presentation is a deepening of my ISAP Thesis.
2019	Fall	20-Nov	Psychological Interpretation of Pictures	04/72	Open Seminar	2 X 45min	Illuminating Parallels: Inspiration, Archetype and Alchemy in the Life and Art of C.G. Jung and Hilma af Klint	Swedish artist Hilma af Klint (1862-1944) and C.G. Jung (1875-1961) were near contemporaries. By comparing and contrasting Jung's first mandala sketches and drawings, af Klint's Swan Series and woodcuts from the Rosarium Philosophorum, the themes of inspiration, archetypal patterns, alchemy, individuation, and Zeitgeist are brought together, inspiring ways of knowing.
